How to write an essay

Essay

What is an essay and how does it differ from a composition?

Essays - a kind of creative task; genre (philosophical, literary critical, historico-biographical, journalistic) prose, combining the author's individually emphasized position with a casual, often paradoxical exposition focused on colloquial speech.

Great Encyclopedic Dictionary. 2000

Composition is a kind of creative task, written independent work of students; the statement of one's own thoughts, experiences, judgments, intentions. Works differ in genre or way of expressing thoughts:

- description,
- narration,
- an explanation,
- reasoning.

An essay or essay is a type of exercise that completes the preparation for an independent presentation of thoughts and ideas. Writing an essay or essay is preceded by: a plan, an abstract, a summary of the text read, a summary of the content, an abstract, an abstract on a series of texts.

A new dictionary of methodological terms and concepts (theory and practice of teaching languages), 2009.
